Doesticks on a Cricket Match.

I have heard a great deal about the many sports of "Merrie England," and have always had a great respect for experts in the athletic games of the Britishers. Cricket has been specified as a game requiring the greatest possible quickness of eye, and activity of limb, and I have heretofore looked upon it as glorious sport, full of intense though innocuous excitement. In my lamb-like innocence I have always, until yesterday, supposed "cricket" to be a diversion, an amusement, a pastime, a holiday recreation, and nothing but ocular demonstration could ever have convinced me of my great mistake. Two famous "Elevens"

innocence I have always, until yesterday,

The Complaint of the Man with the Big Belly.

What on earth makes a man's belly grow three or four times as large as it ought to be, and not any of the rest of his body, for my part I can't see. Why don't a man's nose grow so? Why don't the other animals do so? That's what I'd like to know. "Laugh and grow fat!"

I say grow fat and be laughed at. The human form divine indeed! Adam wouldn't recognize me for a fellow man if I was introduced to him with these hoops-on.

As some one said, it seemed as though

I had stopped growing for a time, and when I commenced again I grew the wrong way. I've tried everything to stop it. I've drank green ale. I've slept on my face. I've dieted. I've tried buckles and straps but who can sleep on his face or go without his victuals or be strapped up so tight he can't whisper? I'm not respected on the street.

No longer ago than yesterday, going along the street, an impatient school-boy ran up to my side, kicked up his heels and sneaked like a pig—them off before me; I pretended that I took no notice of
